SPRING UNITS

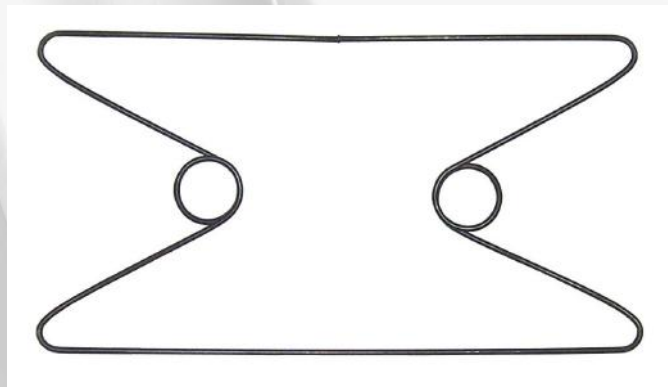

Pocket Spring: The general rule on pocket coil systems is the more coils, the more responsive and motion controlled the mattress is, while still providing support. This directly translates to more comfort.

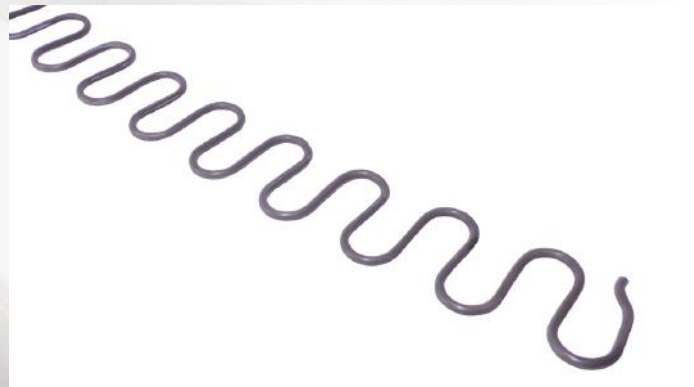

Roll Press or Flat Press packing options are available.

The Bonnell or open coil spring unit is the cheapest and most ineffective support unit you can get in a mattress. It is a continuous piece of wire that is twisted and coiled to create a massive set of joined crude springs. This results in a 'one size spring' of sorts, which moves as a mass piece

Butterfly Spring; support spring mattress hardware quality manufacturer of mattress edge guard for mattress Inner Spring

Zig-Zag Springs are sometimes called Serpentine or No-Sag Springs. These are seat springs formed from tempered wire, which is then formed into evenly spaced curves or 'loops' for a fully supportive and top quality seating system.
